STONE DENIES STAY; SULLY LAST HOPE

Today
Indestructible Science
Cancer Not Contagious
Airplane Cellars
Vanishing Bob

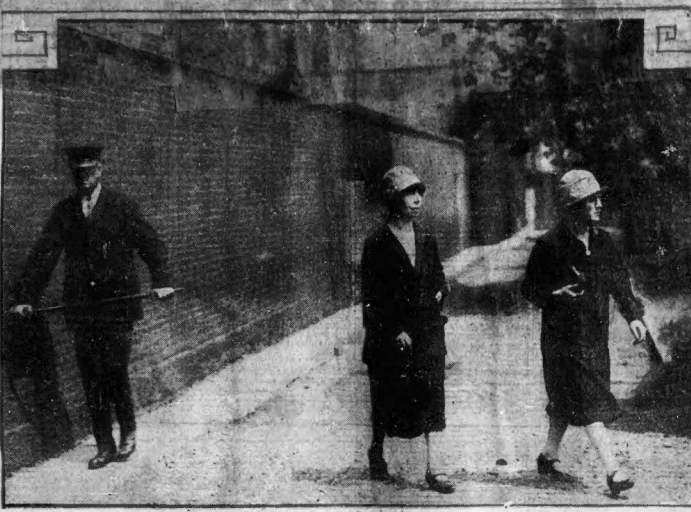

By Arthur Brisbane
THE REV. DR. FORDICE of New York in whose church nobody ever goes to sleep, says science causes religion to feel "with new ideas in the theoretical realm, and with new powers in the practical realm."
The old Bible story, Dr. Fordice says, "telling stories of men living on a flat, stationary earth, with skies and light above and a place for the dead underneath," no longer answers the purpose.
No State, says Dr. Fordice, will be able to pass laws strong enough to hold back science. He is right about that. The theory that the round earth travels around the sun is more generally accepted, although the man that gave the truth to the world was compelled to deny the truth on his knees and spent years of his old age in prison for contradicting the old Bible story.
Two kinds of good news for automobile owners:
First, you are told that it and when the natural supply of gasoline gives out, synthetic gasoline will be made to take its place.
Second, scientists have discovered a system of bud grafting on rubber trees which should increase the yield of a tree 400 per cent.
It is predicted that the cost of rubber delivered in this country will drop from twenty-five cents to less than ten cents a pound.
Scientists say they can make synthetic gasoline, but that probably will be postponed, like artificial gasoline making, until natural supplies diminish.
A French scientist proves by careful observation that cancer is NOT contagious. To do away with the false, persistent suspicion is a great blessing. Married couples, living together, one healthy and one cancerous, do not contract the disease from each other, and cannot contract it. That is proved by reliable statistics.
The German ambassador to Washington says the Grand Canyon was the model for America's new style of skyscraper, with its setbacks.
A more realistic suggestion is that the Grand Canyon will supply a good model for sailors to be dug under skyscrapers in the future, when flying machines land on roofs, and those turn to Page 16, Column 5.

As the swiftly flying hours sped Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti toward eternity today, Justice Harlan F. Stone of the United States Supreme Court and Judge James H. Sisk of the Massachusetts Superior Court both denied stays of execution. These denials eliminated two of the last remaining hopes of defense counsel who were making as dramatic an eleventh-hour attempt to save two lives as ever was made by men armed only with weapons from musty archives of the law.

133 'DEATH MARCHERS' NABBED

With women leading, the fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth and ninth "death watches" staged by Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers in front of the State House were crushed down by police today and a total of 133 marchers were arrested.
The red-shirted Paula Halliday, Greenwich Village "Joan of Arc," led the first watch, in which 4 participants were arrested, while the second procession, out of which the police claimed 25, was led by a gray-haired woman, who described herself as "Mother," Ella Moor of San Francisco.
NOTABLES ARRESTED.
Fervent pictures were arrested in subsequent parades.
It was late when the fourth of the day's "death watches" began, with William Peterson of New York, a Negro lawyer, representing the American Negro Labor Congress, in the lead.
This parade was quickly quelled and forty prisoners were taken.
The eighth "death watch," the fifth of today, resulted in 11 more marchers being corralled. A 12th prisoner, a youth of 16, was taken on who he refused to move on.
At 1 p. m. in the form of a woman, came the ninth "wave" of death watches, constituting the elite of the Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers. They were all arrested, ten of them. It was a surprise advance, that started from the Hotel Bellevue, with those turn to Page 2, Column 5.

Hope Gone, Love Lives After Death House Visit

MRS. CHAPLIN WINS DIVORCE AND $625,000

Los Angeles, Aug. 21 (A.P.)—Lita Grey Chaplin was granted a divorce today from "Charlie" Chaplin, the funny man of the screen.
A settlement reached out of court, which was taken into consideration by Judge Walter Gurnin during a ten-minute recess, gave the actress wife $625,000 and custody of her two children. The divorce followed a court drama lasting an hour during which the girl-wife took the stand and told the court her husband neglected and abused her.
One year must elapse under the law before Mrs. Chaplin receives her final decree.
$200,000 TO CHILDREN.
The stipulation between attorneys setting out the important part of the settlement, follows:
"An agreement has been made between Mr. and Mrs. Chaplin setting all property rights between them. Mrs. Chaplin is to be paid six hundred thousand dollars in cash.

Farewells to Doomed Men This Afternoon

Mrs. Rosa Sacco, wife of Nicola, and Miss Luigia Vanzetti, sister of Bartolomeo, said farewell to the two men doomed to die in the electric chair at State Prison, between 4 and 5 o'clock this afternoon. Sacco, believing that the visit of his wife this morning was the last, sent an appeal for her to visit him once more. This, however, was not necessary as the farewell visit later in the day had been previously arranged.
LA GUARDIA DISCOUNTS SACCO RESPITE HOPES
"It's 100 to 1 against respite of the chances," was all that Congressman New York labor delegation opposing to Governor Fuller for another reprieve for Sacco-Vanzetti, made the trip to Boston in an airplane. After landing at the airport he rushed to the State House where he was greeted by an audience for the Governor.

Sacco and Vanzetti, together with Celestino Madeiros, are doomed to die within the first half hour after midnight tonight.

Virtually only a respite by Governor Fuller and his council can save them, but the desperately fighting defense forces are considering asking an injunction from a Federal judge to prevent Warden William Hendry of State Prison from loosing the current of electrical death tonight.

Following the denial of a stay by Justice Stone, which was made at his Summer home on Isle au Haut, off the north Maine coast, the chief of the defense attorneys was racing more than 200 miles back to Boston to stage the last grim battles in the closing hours.

Justice Stone's Ruling

Justice Stone's ruling was: "Application considered and denied without prejudice to application to any other Justice. I concur in the view expressed by Justice Holmes as to the merits of the application and action of counsel in presenting it."

Hardly had this disappointment met the defense than Judge Sisk, at the Suffolk County Courthouse, formally refused to entertain a motion to stay the execution on the ground of pending action in the United States Supreme Court.

PENN. STATE TROOPER SLAIN IN SACCO RIOT

Pittsburgh, Aug. 21 (A.P.)—A Pennsylvania State trooper was shot and killed during a Sacco-Vanzetti demonstration at Amersfoort, near Springfield, today. The editor, Private John J. Downey, was shot while assisting in breaking up a meeting of some 1,200 Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers.
Downey, accompanied by other troopers, went to carry out orders as Sacco-Vanzetti began to march.

CONVICTION MOVE IS LAST HOPE OF SACCO, VANZETTI FRIENDS

This action was the outcome of a series of informal conferences with Chief Justice Hall and Judge Risk, beginning last Friday. Judge Risk had Attorney-General Reading with him when he made his decision, today, in a statement to Attorney-General Risk.

Coupled with the Federal injunction plus which according to defense counsel would require a hearing before three judges—attorneys claimed tentatively to serve notice on Governor Fuller that they were going to attack the constitutionality of the State Judicial system which the Massachusetts Supreme Court from reviewing facts as well as law in appeal cases.

Such notice, under the law, would automatically operate the death penalty for the duo, according to counsel who stated to Attorney-General Reading to further bulwark their defense.

Another last effort of the defense was announced in Federal Judge Lowell for a writ of habeas corpus based on alleged conspiracy between Department of Justice agents and State authorities.

These plans were to be carried out only if Governor Fuller blasted them, hoping by denying a response. The Governor was contacted with the result plea when he arrived at the State House from his summer home at Buzzards Bay, N. H.

UP TO FULLER

He was informed by Attorney M. A. Mendenhall and Miss Field that the clerk of the U. S. Supreme Court at Washington had today received the complete records of the Sacco-Vanzetti case, which were dispatched in haste from Boston, and had officially docketed the appeal for a hearing on the full record next October, when the justices next convene.

Governor Fuller was asked to grant a writ of habeas corpus in the pending case, and this, it was believed, might influence the Governor against a response.

Chief Justice Taft also had refused to intervene. He is in Canada and explained he could not act on the case while outside the United States. Justice Brandeis found it impossible even to consider the case because his family had been notified friendly with some of the activity known for Sacco and Vanzetti.

DON DEATH GARR

Sacco and Vanzetti and Celestino Medeiros as well, were downing their reaction clothes in the death house as the varied legal fight was being made.

All three refused to embrace religion, although urged to do so by the Rev. Michael J. Murphy, prison chaplain.

Medeiros said his farewell to his wife and was in tears because his mother was physically unable to visit him.

Sacco and Vanzetti stood at the head of their narrow, plumed bed and spoke their last words to the warden of the State House and Miss Leticia Vanzetti. Meeting in their brief, these two victims spoke their last words of love to the world.

The most dramatic part of the litigation from various organs.

N. H. MOUNTED FOR FULLER

Rye, N. H., Aug. 22.—Three mounted New Hampshire State police officers were detailed to meet Governor Fuller of Massachusetts at Salisbury Bridge this afternoon or tonight as he crosses the line into New Hampshire on the way to his summer home at Little Boar's Head.

This action was taken by the State officials despite rumors that the Massachusetts executive would not make the trip on account of the Sacco-Vanzetti situation.

This afternoon, Mr. Fuller and his three children, accompanied by their guards, went on an automobile ride and spent some time at the bathing beach.

Both Realize the End is Near, Says Sacco, Vanzetti Counsel

"Vanzetti appears to be wandering again mentally and wants to 'vandalize' his plant from the death house to the spirit world," said Attorney Michael A. Musmanno of the defense counsel this afternoon as he was leaving State Prison after spending a single night, but a poli-ing nearly a half hour talking with the two doomed men.

"Both are depressed and they realize that the end is near," he continued.

"They wanted to know what was being done for them outside. I told them there were three things—three chances—one the appeal to Governor Fuller for another respite; second, the petition to Chief Justice Hall of the Massachusetts Supreme Court; and third, the appeal to Justice Stone of the U. S. Supreme Court. I know, but not officially, that Justice Stone had turned us down, but I did not want to tell that to the two men until I was certain."

"Although looking badly both were brave, they asked me if they would see me again today. I told them they would."

"Vanzetti did not want to see his sister again. He declared that he regretted her coming from Italy to go through the torture. 'It was a great mistake,' he said."

"Sacco said that he was disappointed with the justice of the U. S. Supreme Court in refusing requests for a stay of execution."

Musmanno, tired by his long battle, declared he still had faith in some action on the appeal filed in Washington. He said the petition for a writ of certiorari is not an appeal to a single justice, but a petition to the entire court.

Search for Pacific Fliers Costs U. S. Navy $90,000

Washington, Aug. 22 (A.P.)—Naval statisticians estimate that the search for the lost Pacific explorers will cost the navy $90,000.

This amount, mainly for fuel, is above normal operating expenses of the fleet of 41 vessels engaged in the search.

In addition, $20,000,000 worth of property in the form of ships and thousands of men have been tied up for eight days and the Pacific maneuvers have been interrupted.

1,000 IN HUB SACCO STRIKE

Garment workers and capmakers, declared to number at least 1,000, went out on strike today as a gesture of protest and sympathy in connection with the Sacco-Vanzetti case.

The strike was set for all of today, according to some of those who admitted they had walked out of the office of union officials.

No one strike official could be found, however, to designate the leader of the walkout.

Shortly after 10 o'clock the clothing workers began leaving their shops and machines.

While some went in groups of two, three, five, ten and more, to headquarters of the International Clothing Workers in Essex street and returned, others, affiliated with the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, went to Amalgamated headquarters in Front Street.

Textiles began to appear in front of both headquarters a short time later, filled with workers and rolled away. It was announced they were going to Bethany Hall in Tremont street.

It was expected to be established and a meeting held.

PREPARE FINAL PLEAS FOR SACCO AND VANZETTI

DEATH OF THE DEATH MARCH IN JOY-LESS STREET

BOSTON AMERICAN

BOSTON, MONDAY, AUGUST 22, 1927.

POLICE HERDING ARRESTED SACCO DEATH PICKETS TO STATION
Parade of the hapless in Joy street, which was filled with gloom and people as efforts of the Sacco-Vanzetti death marchers to picket the State House met with rude rebuffs. In three swoops by the strong arm of the law, 91 persons, many of them women, were arrested.

BAKEMAN OUSTS CHIEF; TO AID SACCO RALLY

Within a few minutes after removing from office Acting Chief of Police Edward D. Callahan, Mayor Robert A. Bakeman of Peabody today announced that Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers would not only be allowed to hold a protest meeting in front of Peabody City Hall tonight, but that he himself would introduce the speaker, Alfred Baker-Lewis.

The arrest of Lewis some days ago and the breaking up of a street meeting by Callahan, are said to have been the cause of his removal by Mayor Bakeman. Callahan refused to be "fired." He declares the move is illegal.

The discharge of Callahan followed a conference between him and Mayor Bakeman, the latter announcing that he had appointed Inspector Edward F. Pierce as acting chief, and Patrolman James P. Murphy as inspector.

Pierce refused to state what stand he would take on the meeting to-night. The Mayor, however, claims that no permits are needed for street meetings. Lewis was charged with obstructing traffic and his case was continued.

Callahan was lent by the Lynn department to Peabody until September 1. At the same time he is directing the affairs of the Lynn force during the vacation of Chief Burke.

BREAK SACCO, VANZETTI DATE WITH SEN. WALSH

Mrs. Rosa Sacco and Miss Lulie Vanzetti today failed to keep the appointment they made with U. S. Senator David I. Walsh yesterday.

The Senator made a special trip to his office in this city, arriving at 10 o'clock, the hour set for the appointment, but the two women were not on hand. Later he was informed they were busy on certain legal aspects of the case and it was doubtful if they would call on him. He hasn't the faintest idea what they thought it could do," said the Senator, "but I shall remain in my office for a time in case they wish to speak to me."

Sister of Vanzetti Almost Collapses After Prison Visit

Overcome by the greeting extended her by friends of her brother, Miss Lulie Vanzetti reeled and appeared about to collapse at Sacco-Vanzetti defense headquarters on Hanover street today.

"You mustn't break down, Lulie. Be brave, be brave," Mrs. Rosa Sacco counseled her, and Miss Vanzetti rallied.

The incident occurred after the two women had returned from the prison where they visited Sacco and Vanzetti.

Miss Vanzetti was given a hysterical greeting by a number of women workers at defense headquarters.

Miss Vanzetti bore up well until she was embraced by Mrs. Antonette Hirt, said to be Vanzetti's closest friend, and then she staggered. She was assisted to a chair and regained her composure.

Mrs. Katherine Codman then went out and bought sandwiches and coffee, which she served to the two women.

BERLIN GUARDS U. S. EMBASSY

Berlin, Aug. 22 (A.P.)—Berlin police today extended their precautions to safeguard the American embassy and consulates from possible untoward incidents in connection with the Sacco-Vanzetti case.

Four plainclothes men were added to the guard at the embassy entrance on the Wilhelmplatz. All wheeled traffic in that part of the square was stopped, and detectives and police were detailed to watch traffic near it. The consulate, in the Belfrage, half a mile away, was also guarded.

MADEIROS SOBS AT MOTHER'S ABSENCE

Burying his face in his hands, Celestino Madeiros wept bitter tears today in his cell in the death house when he learned from his sister, Mrs. Consuelo Aruda, that his mother would be unable to bid him farewell.

His mother collapsed in the ward's office the last time she visited her condemned son, a few hours before a respite saved his life for a few additional days.

Cool and calm in the face of death, the youth, who must die for the slaying of a Wrentham bank cashier, showed emotion for the first time when he heard that he had seen his mother for the last time.

He had looked forward to seeing her today as he told Father Murphy, Catholic chaplain of State Prison.

His sister spent an hour with him, standing before his cell in the death house, and this is the message she carried from him to his mother when she left after a sad farewell. "Don't worry, mother. Try to have courage for her mother's sake alone and she would not repeat it."

Linharens Asks Fuller for Madeiros Interview

Appealing from the refusal of Warden Henry to allow him to visit Celestino Madeiros, Joseph Linharens, an attorney, addressed a petition to Governor Fuller today requesting an opportunity to interview the condemned man.

Failed by the warden Saturday in his attempt to secure an alibi, examination of Madeiros, Linharens returned to the prison today to renew his request. Warden Henry refused his request of either a medical examination or a medical examination of the condemned man by Linharens or doctors of his choice.

Before turning down the almost seven hour effort of Madeiros' friends, the warden consulted the attorney general and the doomed man's own counsel.

Rochester Sacco Strike Calls Out Many Thousands

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 22 (A.P.)—Several thousand clothing workers, joined by other sympathizing laborers, walked out in a protest strike today against the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti.

Officials of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers did not officially call the strike, but indications were that it would exceed in numbers the strike of two weeks ago, when between 15,000 and 20,000 joined in marches and processions.

SACCO AVENGERS WARN THEY'LL BLOW THINGS UP

Ridgely Park, N. J., Aug. 22 (A.P.)—Police today received an anonymous letter signed "Bons of Italy," in which threats were made to blow up railroad bridges, banks and the town hall.

The letter read: "Sacco-Vanzetti. Warning: save police, quicker than you. Bons of Italy. They die 22nd of August. Railroad bridges, towns up, also banks and town hall. Try and find out."

'SHOOT TO KILL,' QUINCY ORDER

"Shoot to kill" was the emergency order given the Quincy police today by Chief Ernest H. Bishop in detailing his plans for the protection of the city against Sacco-Vanzetti uprising.

Both Quincy Sacco-Vanzetti jurors have been furnished a strong police guard and no stranger is permitted to venture near their homes.

The naval guard on the U. S. Lexington, airplane carrier moored at Fore River, has been reinforced by a detachment from the Charleston Navy Yard. The New Haven railroad bridge over the Nonnepot River is patrolled by a guard as is the popular shiphouse at Sheep Rock, West Quincy.

Sacco Arrests in Japan
Tokyo, Aug. 23 (A.P.)—During a Sacco-Vanzetti demonstration police arrested twenty persons, and later ten more, who were proceeding to the American Embassy to present a resolution of protest. Another arrest occurred when a man attempted to force his way into the Embassy.

Doomed Trio to Die 'Outside the Pale'

"They said they preferred to die as they lived—outside the pale."

This was the report of Father, Michael J. Murphy, Catholic chaplain of State Prison, after he urged Sacco, Vanzetti and Madeiros today for the last time to embrace religion.

"I have just visited the three men at the death-house, as I promised to do last night," said the chaplain, emerging from the gloomy building after a visit lasting an hour.

"I once again urged them to prepare themselves for eternity, to receive the sacraments and to meet death fortified by the rites of the church. Each refused, saying he preferred to die as he had lived, outside the pale.

"However, I shall hold myself in readiness to offer one or all the consolation of religion until the end. If they have a change of heart they can receive the last rites of the church, even at 11:45 tonight."

CHILDREN PLAY OUTSIDE AS THREE FACE DOOM

GUARDS ON THE PRISON NO SUN

Within the dull gray and red walls of the State Prison in Charlestown the final chapter in a world-wide interest drama is being enacted today.

Before the gun of another day paints the roofs of distant Charlestown, unless the unforeseen happens, Nicola Sacco, Bartolomeo Vanzetti and Celestino Madonia, sentenced to die for breaking the laws of man, will have gone on into eternity.

Picture an up-country industrial plant with the old hand-hewn granite original building of the early 1800s, crowned with a couple of turrets and flanked with the red brick wings of modern times and surrounded with high brick walls and you have an idea of what the State Prison looks like today.

HEN OF MACHINERY

There is the same hum of machinery, heavy rumble of traffic on the cobble street, the clanging of bells and snoring of locomotives in the railroad yards at the rear, the bright colored flower beds and the well-kept lawn of the office building.

But proudly over it all, sometimes waving and sometimes drooping on the flickle Summer breeze from their stately and the stars and stripes and the white ring of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. They seem to dominate that it is the State's industrial plant—a shop for mending, cleaning, or to dispose of the law books. Ordinarily, with the smoke belching from its factory chimneys, it would pass for a hive of industry, a part of a peaceful scene.

ALL CHANGED TODAY

Today all was changed. A score or more of little children romped about the grass of the yard on the Chapman street side, or picked bonnets in the shade of the straggling trees and scowled their names in white chalk upon the brick wall along the Walk of Hope leading from the warden's office to the first-aid station at the far end of the prison compound. Only a rickety post fence separated their playground from the building structure housing the death cells and the three doors men looking fitfully upon their cell coats.

The deathhouse door, a narrow little steel door with a massive handle, is swinging open, revealing the barred door within. It is not as an oven within the deathhouse, where the August sun beats broken upon the flat tarred roof.

CHILDREN LAUGH NEAR BY

It is so hot that the police officer sitting in the shade of one of the trees snips his teeth when he watches the children at play. Sacco, Vanzetti and Madonia can hear their laughter. They were little children once.

A shadow looms over the Walk of Hope, as the guard on the wall calls out to the guard at the deathhouse door. "It is hot—it is going to be better 'fore sundown," the guard replies.

CHAPLAIN ARRIVES

A clergyman makes the turn from the warden's office and enters hurriedly along the Walk of Hope. It is the Rev. Michael J. Murphy, the Catholic chaplain of the prison. He has a wonderful face and kindly eyes. No wonder he has been able to stand the weakening at the brink of death.

He has come to visit the three doomed men. One, Celestino Madonia, has already prepared to make peace with his Creator. Sacco and Vanzetti have no far-declared to leave the touchings of the albatross.

Palmer Murphy sees the sun glinting the cross on the spire of St. Francis de Sales Church on Bunker Hill, which seems only a short distance from the death house. He sniffs and disapproves through the narrow death house door.

The guards, whose eyes escape nothing going on below, go back to their posts on the prison wall.

MADONIA'S SISTER ADMITTED

A woman arrives at the prison gates, speaks to the police officers on guard and is waved into the lot. It is the sister of Madonia. She goes to the warden's office and is later seen.

ported to the death house. Out in the street there is excitement of some kind. A young man, probably 25 or 30, suddenly rushes up and kisses a telephone pole. Before the amazed guards realize what is up, he rushes to the next one and instantly there are half a dozen officers about him. They frisk him for a possible weapon, then let him go. As the day grows old more police officers arrive and are assigned to positions. The fences come, there is no alarm, and they lay lines of hose on adjoining roofs. They are just making ready for trouble when the time for execution comes. Officers also go to roofs of buildings all about the prison. When night comes there will not be an unprotected point about the institution, which then will be virtually an armed camp with big searchlights turning the night into day.

Worcester, Aug. 22 (A.P.)—The will of Henry Burnett of Southboro, manufacturer of extracts, filed here today, disposes of an estate of $1,010,000. He leaves to the trustees of St. Mark's School, Southboro, $12,000 as a scholarship fund; St. Mark's Parish, Southboro, $10,000 for organ fund and $5,000 to hold in trust until $15,000 for building of parish house at St. Mark's is acquired. He leaves $25,000 as a trust fund for the building of a rectory at St. Mark's Church; the trustees of donations to Protestant Episcopal Church set $10,000 for upkeep of St. Mark's Church; and Church Home Society of Boston is left $2,500. There is a trust fund of $50,000 to the trustees of St. Mark's School as an endowment fund; the Cathedral Church of St. Paul is left $25,000; $500 is left to Burnett Park in Southboro to be used for the care of a burial lot.

Upon the death of the late aviator, the will of his brother and sister, with the exception of his sister Ruth, the residuary of the estate of the Joseph Burnett Company is to be divided equally among the nephews and nieces.

The residue is left to Robert M. Burnett of Southboro, Walter Burnett of Southboro, Josephine B. Kidder of Southboro, Esther Gardner of Boston, John T. Burnett of Southboro, Louise B. Chase of Southboro and Elinor Bishop of Pasadena, Calif.

The executors are John T. Burnett and William W. Vaughn.

ARREST OF 4 MASKED MEN NEAR IN GIRL FLOGGING

Florence, Ala., Aug. 22 (A.P.)—Arrest tomorrow of four of the masked men who flogged pretty seventeen-year-old Mary Bishop was ordered today by L. E. Safford, a detective investigating the affair. He said he had furnished the sheriff's office sufficient information regarding the identity of the floggers.

Miss Bishop was taken from her home on the night of July 6 by eight masked men and carried into the woods and whipped.

CEDRIDGE TO FIGHT TODAY IN YELLOWSTONE

President Coolidge's Special Train, en Route to Yellowstone, Park, Billings, Mont., Aug. 22 (A.P.)—Nearing his destination in Yellowstone National Park, President Coolidge headed into Montana today on his first trip in this territory since he entered the White House.

He was up for an early breakfast before Billings was reached, apparently entirely recovered from the slight indisposition which caused him to remain in bed yesterday morning. The illness was described by Major James F. Cooper, White House physician, as "a slight attack of indigestion," and Mr. Coolidge was able to eat a large dinner last night, as well as a hearty breakfast this morning.

A large crowd of welcoming westerners, with an open road ahead, greeted the President and Mrs. Coolidge and their son, John, when they appeared on the rear platform of their special train.

Arriving Billings, the President sped westward, toward Livingston and Gardiner, where he will enter the National Park. Upon reaching there, this afternoon, he expects to establish headquarters at the Mammoth Hotel and before the day is over he hopes to get in some fishing in one of the streams of the Yellowstone.

Representative Scott Leavitt of Montana boarded the train here to ride to Livingston.

Unique Montana Brooch To Be Given Mrs. Coolidge

Billings, Mont., Aug. 22 (A.P.)—Mrs. Coolidge is to receive from the women of Billings a brooch, set with an oval agate, found after sorting hundreds of tons of rock from Montana hills.

The agate, an inch and one-half in length, bears an image in colors of green, red and white, which is said to resemble that of the brooch worn by Mrs. Coolidge when she was discovered by the Lewis and Clark expedition. The rock, which was found by a miner named after Pompey, negro chief for the President Coolidge's train brings the presidential party from the Summer White House to Yellowstone Park to extend here today when the presentation probably will be made.

1000 GATHER AT A. O. U. MEET

Delegates from every division of the Ancient Order of Hibernians in Massachusetts, as well as hundreds of delegates of the ladies auxiliary, attended a high mass at St. James' Church, Hingham avenue, today, preceding the opening of the annual State convention of both organizations at Hotel Statler. About 600 delegates of the A. O. U. and 400 of the ladies auxiliary registered during the morning session.

The mass was celebrated by the Rev. Thomas J. MacCormack, pastor of St. Francis de Sales' Church, Charlestown, who is county president of the A. O. U.

Zeremias J. Crowley, state president, presided at the business session. Captain John A. Murphy of the Veterans Bureau, representing Mayor Nichols, extended the welcome and greetings of the city of Boston. Addresses were delivered by the Rev. Philip J. O'Donnell, rector of St. James' parish, and John MacCormack, former Mayor James J. Curley and State President Statler.

Tonight the delegates will be the guests of the Suffolk County organization at a grand ball to be held in the ballroom at Hotel Statler. The convention will be brought to a close tomorrow with the election of officers of both organizations.

POINTS OUT EVILS OF TRIAL BY JURY

Williamstown, Aug. 22 (A.P.)—Advantages of the Continental system of civil law over American system of common law were discussed in a general conference at the Institute of Politics today by Pierre L. Puchelle, director of the American seminar of the University of Paris.

Declaring the civil law is 2,000 years older than common law and prevails in countries that gave us common law 200 years ago, he said the common law jury brings unbusinesslike methods into the courtroom, represents simply the reign of the incompetent layman and substitutes sentiments of the jurors for the reasoning of the judges who alone can pass upon a case under civil law.

TRAIN KNOCKS MAN INTO NEPONSET RIVER

Knocked from the Neponset bridge into the Neponset river by a New Haven train, Arthur McGinnis, an employee of the railroad, was rushed to Massachusetts General Hospital today, where his name was placed on the danger list.

McGinnis was struck across the bridge carrying an eight-foot plank on one shoulder, when a local which left Brockton at 7:15 struck one end of the plank, and flung McGinnis into the river. Two men in a boat rescued the unconscious railroad man.

DYNAMITE AT SACO, ME., FOR LEGITIMATE PURPOSE

Saco, Me., Aug. 22 (A.P.)—Police, on their return from an investigation of a stock of dynamite which had been found on the outskirts of the city, said it belonged to a contractor who had it for use in road construction work. By advice of police the stores were moved to a less conspicuous place.

100 Armed Guards Protect Capitol in Sacco Crisis

Washington, Aug. 22 (A.P.)—Public buildings of the capital today were patrolled by augmented forces of guards to cope with any popular attempts by Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers.

The greatest safety measures were taken at the capitol, where a force of 100 men, many of them armed with rifles, were on duty, while only hundreds of special passes and employees were permitted to enter.

The police, however, considered much of their usual routine without cancellation of leaves or days off, with the exception of plain clothes detectives, whose days off were cancelled for the week.

RETH TAKES UP LEGION POST

John W. Reth of Rollinsdale, installed as commander of the State Department, American Legion, in the Gardner Auditorium at the State House today, although not referring to the Sacco-Vanzetti case by name, declared law and order must be maintained.

He said that although Legionnaires "have never been purveyors of hysteria, we want everyone to know that we stand foursquare for preservation of constitutional authority and we must insist that those within our borders adhere to these principles we have striven so hard to preserve."

It was the first time the department has had an official ceremony for the event. The new commander announced the appointment of Arthur D. Hickey of Somerville as judge advocate and Clifford Clark of Rollinsdale as sergeant-at-arms.

'Rip' to Be Presented on Screen by De Mille

By LOUELLA G. PARSONS
LOS ANGELES, Aug. 21.—"Rip Van Winkle," the first known sufferer from sleeping sickness, is going to do his act in the movies. It will be played by a star other than Rudolph Schickel, well-known character actor, who has endeavored to give his conception of "Rip Van Winkle" in a special De Mille production.

The filming of Rip, whose twenty years' sleep in the Catskill Mountains is one of the most famous incidents in fiction, is to be directed by William De Mille. Clara Brevange is now assisting the scenario, which will go into production within two weeks.

I shall wear and grasp my teeth not to right by "Victory." Joseph Conrad's colorful novel. So far Conrad has been a total loss in the movies. His style, and even his themes, have been distorted. After all this I shall have to admit that this movie has made a good start with "Victory."

George Bancroft has been chosen as the hero. He has an engaging screen personality, and will fit into the role as well as any one I know.

First National college boys have become a matter of the greatest interest throughout the country. While I don't go as far as to say they share the insight with our aviators, I will say that many interests have been created at this did asking for information concerning them. Therefore, I am glad to report John Westwood, the Princeton boy who was one of the winners of the college boy contest, has been given the first motion picture role. He will play Telemachus, the son of Odysseus in "The Private Life of Helen of Troy."

The partnership of Monte Blue and Lella Hyams is declared off for the time being. Miss Hyams has been loaned to the Fox Company for none other than our old friend, Buck Jones. For months Buck worried along on any old story he could get. Then one day, some one at the Fox studio made the discovery that the income from Buck's picture was helping to pay the butcher's bill.

There is an addition to the Martin Duvall cast in "The Fox Court" that I believe is worthy of special comment. Her name is Anita Murray, and she is visiting California with her mother, Mrs. Hugh Murray. Anita is a school girl, youthful, enthusiastic and the type that everyone will like.

BETTY ALDEN'S SOCIETY COMMENT

J. Brooks Fenno Meets Manuel Alonzo in First Match of Tennis Week at Newport

NEWPORT'S LONG ANTICIPATED invitation tennis week days today, with a Boston tennis man leading off in the first match. Before a brilliant gallery, composed of Newport's high and mighty, J. Brooks Fenno meets Manuel Alonzo in the first across the net contest. Mr. Alonzo is a brilliant court performer, having won the Davis cup stars, and Mr. Fenno has played tennis, the championship sort all over the world on many courts in many countries and has a high place in Boston's aristocracy.

CAMERON McRAB BINSLOW, Jr., one of the Casino players during invitation week is another young man who has a place in the Boston social limelight. Nathaniel Allen is down in the second match, and so is Maurus Bette. As for other stars, near stars and would-be stars during tennis week, they number altogether eighty, making the week one of the biggest and busiest in the famous old Casino has ever experienced and taking the oldtimers to the edge of their seats "before the war" days.

LAST MINUTE ARRIVALS FOR tennis week and its excitements are the Charles A. Hardings of Dedham and Palm Beach. Mrs. Harding, playing in first match, was able to secure the very last and only hot available for the tennis, that belonging to Mrs. Arthur Curtis James, who has gone

BOSTON AND MAINE RAILROAD

ONE KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

Sevenoaks, Kent, Eng., Aug. 22 (A.P.)—A mechanic was killed and seven passengers were slightly injured when a Dutch air liner, bound from Croydon Field, London, for Amsterdam, crashed in a field near here today.

The rudder of the machine was torn loose by a strong wind, and apparently only skillful manipulation by the pilot averted a catastrophe. The plane split between two trees, against one of which the mechanic, named Brindaux, was crushed.

Most of the eleven passengers on board were Dutch or English. There were no Americans.

BLARNEY STONE KISSED BY 27,000 U. S. TOURISTS

Cork, Ireland, Aug. 22 (A.P.)—More than 27,000 American tourists have kissed the famous Blarney Stone this year.

The curators of Blarney Castle are considering limiting the number of "kissing visitors" in the future because of the danger. They point out that the kissers must climb to the top of the castle and there the twisted door used for another person holding on to the feet, and that about that hold relax a serious fall might result.

Blarney Stone is gradually wearing away, partly by the action of the elements and partly by the damage done by tourists in their effort to kiss the stone. The postcard, however, according to the common belief, remains the same. This has been described by one Irish writer in the following words:

2 ROXBURY MEN LEAP FOR LIVES

Fitchburg, Aug. 22 (A.P.)—Two Roxbury men jumped to safety in day before a truck, in which they were riding, was struck by a locomotive of a Boston and Maine freight train at Mitchellville crossing, between Shirley and Ayer.

Louis Piotti, driver, and James Healey, helper, leaped from the seat a few feet from the crossing, which was unguarded.

The truck was pushed 62 feet along the track, but was damaged only slightly.

Chickering's Great Sale

OF PIANOS FROM FINE HOMES

... But it's a Real Sale When It Comes!

ONCE a year—it is the policy of Chickering & Sons to conduct a worthwhile sale of worthwhile pianos—exchanged for Chickering Ampicos—not because their owners loved them less, but because they liked the Chickering Ampico more. These instruments come from the finest homes of the East—from luxurious Beacon Street Apartments, beautiful estates in Boston's finest suburbs—and are reserved from sale over a period of months—especially for this great annual event. This year—(19 famous makes are offered—prices far below their worth. Also included—are a number of CHICKERINGS and CHICKERING AMPICOS, used for demonstration purposes.

Any instrument in this sale is worthy of the finest home—for every instrument has been thoroughly gone over by Chickering craftsmen—and is guaranteed by Chickering & Sons. It will be difficult to assemble again, if ever—so beautiful a collection of pianos, at the prices offered.

If you have the slightest intention of buying a piano at any time this year—wait till NOW. Here is an opportunity to own a famous, warranted piano at a saving that may never be equalled again.

Special low monthly terms, if you wish. Small down payment. Liberal allowance for your present piano. A small deposit will hold the piano of your choice until Christmas.

Nearly 100 Youngsters Play at Commonwealth for State Championship

Come to a hundred youngsters, most of them under fifteen years of age, and in whose ranks may be more than one embryonic Jones, Hagen or Quinn, will dig up the turf of the Commonwealth Country Club golf course tomorrow in the annual scramble for the kiddie championship of Massachusetts.

Due to a ruling which automatically makes a professional of boys who add over the age of sixteen to last year's field has passed on, and the kids who deal in divots even fearfully a brand new array of the youngest stars in active position.

Joe Lynch was the winner a year ago. He now plays top-notch golf for Alhambra, is also the present junior titleholder, and is headed for still greater glory.

After his performance at Wood and last week, he was informed that his state handicap, already at the six six, was to be cut again this year down to four. By the way, it is a youth who will carry a very out of the caddy class may make his way into the most select circle.

With the former stars past the green-vested mark, one cannot have such a good line on those who will battle at Commonwealth today. The caddy ranks, however, include a number of clever players.

John Quinn of Chestnut Hill, fifteen years old, is one youngster who is being watched. Tom Valley of Vinton is another. Green Hill is represented by Frank J. Red, one of the most experienced of the land a possible winner.

Ruth Outsteps Gehrig
as Drawing Card

By Jack Conway

"BABE RUTH continues as baseball's greatest drawing card despite the fact Lou Gehrig now and then leads the mighty Bambino in the home run race," chirped Mr. Boston today. "Gehrig hits the ball as hard and as far as Ruth, but lacks the color which has enabled Babe to win his way into the hearts of American sport fans."

Over in New York, they call the Yankee Stadium the Temple of Ruth. This is O. K. Caddy to view of the fact it was the Bambino's power as a home run swatter which enabled the New York management to erect this structure.

"Ruth hasn't attempted to live by any book of etiquette. Neither has he posed as a model athlete. Training rules have not meant a thing in his young life, while he has won money merely as something with which to buy what you want when you want it."

"I have never heard of where any preacher has ever advised their flock to live like the Babe so as to make sure of climbing the pious stairs."

"With all his disregard of training rules, the Bambino has never done anything which was wrong. He merely likes to ride around in autos and drop in on friends here and there until the small hours of the morning. I'd admit that I have often remained until 6 a. m. in the morning without doing anything more violent than drink ginger ale and eat cheese sandwiches."

"I have found something about the night air between midnight and six o'clock in the morning which is particularly peaceful. Between these hours you also encounter a certain jolly gang of people who are not concerned with anything other than getting all they can out of life."

I remember on one occasion meeting my friend Pat Bowen at an hour when so-called respectable people have gone to bed.

"I have LIVED," said Pat. "If the good Lord were to call me now, I would answer the summons feeling that the world does not owe me anything."

"I think Babe Ruth could say as much. He has LIVED."

"The Babe might fall on some of the tees which the adulators hand out, but he has never missed fire on the diamond."

"Hubby Duff, Red Sox scout, once told me that he never saw Ruth do a wrong thing in a ball game."

"The Babe in the most mature ball player I have ever seen upon said. 'Hubby' always does the right thing. He has a second baseball sense. Baseball has never known another Ruth. The national pastime is indebted to him and when he completes his active career he should be pensioned."

"Ruth has succeeded at baseball because he would rather play ball than do anything else. I guess people who reach the heights in other lines do so because they are all wrapped up in their work."

"I happened to be in Tampa with the Red Sox back in the Spring of 1915. At the time Ruth was one of the star players of the Red Sox. He was also hitting the ball hard and occasionally playing left field."

"Ed Barrow was forced to shift Ruth to the outfield. The Bambino was able to toss out runners at the plate despite his altered arm arc. Anybody that is how Ruth started his sensational career as an outfielder."

Gehrig will have to do a great many things other than bat out home runs if he is to take the play away from Ruth."

ELKS AMATEURS
AT SOMERVILLE
TONIGHT

With the large number of heavyweights entered in the Elks Amateur Boxing Tournament, tonight, at Tufts Oval, Somerville, the committee in charge of the affair expects to have on hand one of the largest crowds that ever attended an outdoor amateur tournament under Greater Boston.

This is the second tournament under the auspices of the Somerville Elks.

There is competition in the 112, 125, 135, 147, 160 and heavyweight classes, and with the tonnage on hand in each class, there will be plenty of mill-winding while the ropes ring from the opening to the closing gong.

The show will start promptly at 8 p. m., and will be over at 11:30 p. m.

Ham Sandwich Gave
Flynn Anxious Time

(This is the fifth of a series of articles written by Leo P. Flynn in which the noted boxing man tells his own story of how he brought back Jack Dempsey.)

By LEO P. FLYNN,
Manager of Jack Dempsey.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—A ham sandwich, under the proper circumstances and with plenty of mustard, is to me a work of art. I am a great admirer of the ham sandwich.

But I'm willing to admit it is no dish to eat before a 32-year-old batter on the day before he is supposed to fight Jack Sharkey. The sandwich that Dempsey ate on the afternoon of July 20 almost forced me to call off the big fight.

It made Dempsey sick, and it was no trifling sickness, either. He became bilious and bouts of perspiration broke out on his forehead. He felt his head, and it was cold and clammy.

Looking back now, I realize I never should have allowed him to eat it. On the evening, Dempsey appears to be a man without nerves. Actually, he is quite the opposite. He burns up inside. The stomach of a man like him should be given only the plainest of food on the eve of an important event.

Years ago, Dr. A. Bentley Squire gave me a prescription for a nervous stomach. I come in the form of a powder, and I always carry some of it with me.

When I realized the condition Dempsey was in, I pulled out my powder and mixed it up in a glass. "Here you are, Jack, down this, and you'll feel better," I said.

Dempsey could not use a comment that I never will forget. He didn't eat me without a question. He lifted the glass and drank it off without a question. Dempsey knew, and he knew that I knew that I could have made a fortune by turning triller in those closing minutes. He did not know what was in those powers, but he trusted me. I don't believe the man lives who could cross a fellow like him.

That is the outstanding trait of Jack Dempsey's character. When he gives his confidence, he gives it wholeheartedly. It is a trait which my prescription worked, to my great relief. He felt better before we reached New York. The biliousness disappeared, and he was almost normal by the time we reached my apartment. I took no chances though. I gave him a light meal.

We sat and talked for two hours before he went to bed. We talked about everything under the sun but the fight.

The general belief of those fighters can think and talk of nothing else on the eve of battle. As a matter of fact, we spent the entire evening discussing Colonel Lindbergh, at whom Dempsey is very fond. Lindbergh sent him a telegram of congratulations after the fight, and Jack took that home with him. That is one creature he intends to see.

Everyone expected a lively scene when the two Jacks met to weigh in the next day. Dempsey was all set for it. I think Sharkey would have gone off second best, just as he did every other time he tried to work his peculiar and profane brand of psychology on Dempsey.

But I probably was just as well that the boxing commission decided to have them examined at different hours. Sharkey might have been knocked out twice that day, although I will say that he would have had to take the first punch Dempsey has always made that fellow look ridiculous.

Now we arrive at the moment in the dressing room at the Yankee Stadium, when I sat with Dempsey and gave him his final instructions. I only made two requests.

In his next article, Flynn will tell his own story of the Dempsey Sharkey fight.

Exercises That Aid in "You Said It, Marceline!" Reducing Hips

By Maria Jeritza

Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company and One of the Most Beautiful Women of the Day.

STOUT hips are the bane of modern woman, especially of office workers who sit at a desk many hours each day. The active, out-door, athletic girl is seldom troubled by excess fat in any part of her body, for active exercise keeps her blood circulating vigorously, feeding her tissue, padding it with just the normal amount

Dr. Reed on the Daily Dozen Outdoor Life for Healthy Girls

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D.
Former President of the American Medical Association

YOU may be one of those who think that the only way to keep your legs in good shape is to take them "dead" through the day. That is to say you "don't move them." But that's not the best form of physical exercise to set your legs for the day. And such exercises do set you up. That is the reason why, in both the Army and Navy, the legs are called "setting-up exercises."

In all setting-up exercises, leg movements are very properly conspicuous. But there can be both an art and a science to them.

The right time to use leg exercises, explains Surgeon Commandant Hill, of the English Navy, is at the beginning of a series. The object is to "wake up" the muscles and to get the leg muscles. One is very apt to forget that one is using the legs from the time one gets out of bed in the morning. "If you don't wake up, you have to use your legs in some way,"

In order to enter the gymnasium before exercise begins you stand about for a certain time. The legs are kept in a contracted position, the blood and their total weight is kept in the lower part of the body, so as to have to support the weight of all the blood in the body. The result is that the heart has to pump the same products more easily than in the normal position of the body. A contraction of the legs, a few contractions of the muscles will therefore cause the blood to be pumped out of the vessels and muscles and get into the heart.

A few contractions of this kind are Nature's way of preparing any animal for a sudden exertion. It is up for a 100-yard sprint move his legs, he is ready to jump, he is ready for a blow, he is ready to fight or to flee. These movements are Nature's way of preparing the warm blood, as it were, and make the blood less liable to injury.

There is a great amount of danger in making a sudden effort after a long contraction of the legs, as a contraction may rupture a vessel or some of the fibres. For this reason trainers do not allow runners or athletes to go out into the street and make maximum movements of the legs before the race. As a rule, before starting, they serve to pump exactly the same purpose.

In sport, leg movements before the start are not made for the same reason as any other preliminary exercises, and are a good thing, and the danger of such movements are to be avoided.

After exercise, it is best to quit the legs and reduce its rate to normal after exercise, and the same applies to the arms. It is a bad thing. They are said to have a relaxing effect on the body. People are told to pump the blood into the heart, and then to let it flow down to slow down.

I have repeatedly denounced this as a complete fallacy.

By L. LAMAR MATTHEWS

A certain residential block lives three parts of the between their faces, their bearing and general appearance denote the that they come from good fam that are fairly well-to-do. Sometimes they sit together on a low stone wall and read. Some times they sit and talk. And some times they just sit. Occasionally in evening they appear dressed in Sunday best; and on those oc casions there are three or four boys who sit with them at all together. They sit at all together some body's doorstep until they told to leave. Then they find their resting place and remain there until they are uprooted. To the truth, they are rather bol sive and that's why they have more so often

There is no place at home that that provides food and that build modes.

If they could hike in the fields and through the forests for plants and flowers, daisies and bees, climb the mountains, paddle their own canoes, or swim in the streams and lakes, they would be happy. But they left for their parents to solve.

Of course, that is not often possible. But parents can help their children manage a few weeks in camp for the child. Sometimes they provide weekend trips to the country or outdoors. Sometimes the child can arrange an evening out of doors, where a picnic supper and old-fashioned games will dispel a lot of the boredom.

When a girl has the privilege of inviting her young friends to join her in a walk, she can give them more time than she. When she has the responsibility of fixing the dinner, she can give them more time than she.

That is helpful. Persuade her to finish what she's begun and help her to enjoy her achievements.

It is not always the best opinion, but don't be always telling her you give use to be and are meant now. There isn't much difference in the new-fashioned girl and the girl of your day and time. It isn't because she is a girl, but it is because she is a daughter, but you. Let her be a daughter, but you. Let her be a daughter, but you. Let her be a daughter, but you.

Presenting Children

DEAR MR. HERRICKMAN:

Will you please help me? I have four children, two daughters and two sons, who are now 10, 12, 14 and 16. When introducing them to a company of friends, I usually begin with the words, "These are my children." I always refer to them as "my children" in contrast, when I speak of them individually I say "my daughter, Grace" or "my son, John." I am sure that this is the proper way to introduce them as individuals. I have heard of people who say, "These are my children," which I think sounds too individual. What do you think?

YOURS TRULY,
J. H. COLUM

I DON'T think that "these are my children" is the best way to introduce an individual. An introduction is a very important event in the life of a person, and when one is introducing one's children to a group of people, the important one should make it just as important and "consequential" as the introduction of an individual. Children are as old as you are. Please introduce them separately. This is the way I would introduce my son, John, Dorothy, my son, Douglas, and my son, John. You can say that you have four children, but the commendable pride that they will be honored by the individual introduction will be lost. I would introduce them by saying, "These are my children." I would then introduce four grown-up children, each singly.

soon. I am not sure of anything except that I am not sure of anything. Please help me to straighten up this terrible chaos.

YOUR letter leaves out a few important circumstances. For instance, M., such as your age and how the young man has been acting for the last few months. I have known a great many young men who have known what they were doing for a long time, but who have definitely given up the idea of marriage. I have seen many a young man who has established his character and who would be a good gift for a girl to marry.

There is also the question of management, for instance. If he meant just that, I would be glad to help him. It is clear that he has changed his mind about the future of his life.

But were you not mistaken in doing so? I am sure that you were not. Your parents? When he writes you, tell him that I am sure that you reply how much you regret to hear that he encouraged him to have a good time. I am sure that you will be a mother. Ask him to write them to let them know that you are a good girl and ears their consent to marry.

I do not know whether you will.

He loved and admired her so much that he trailed her like a shadow. And finally they were married. Then he settled down to make her happy. He didn't approve, you see, of this romantic stuff for girls. His mother never knew how to skate, and she

MEDBURY SAYS---

BY JOHN P. MEDBURY

ACCORDING to a well known group of fanilists, what this country needs is more war-men, the kind who don't work "die" for an snaver.

THEY love the good old days when a man used to put him arm around a girl's waist and break three of her ribs.

THIS Romance kept their business, and struggling was a part of it.

LOVE was love in that generation. You didn't get married unless you were going to have her heart broken by her nose twisted.

EVEN men used to pet with their fists closed.

KISSES didn't come as freely, but they were heated better than wet gun cotton.

NO man ever had to wash his face with paint remover.

RED lips were home grown, and bluffs were on the level.

ROST cheeks didn't come in cans.

GIRLS used to wear their hair loose in those days so that a father wouldn't have any trouble dragging his daughter out of the parlor.

COUNTING was always done in the presence of a chaperone and very few of them would ever take any graft.

AN elopement was an event in grandmother's time. But nowadays a mother helps her daughter pick out her father before she leads her.

ONE runaway couple had to wait twenty minutes the other waiting while the rejected suitor ran off and phoned for a cab.

THERE was no ill feeling, he even apologized as he saw Niagara Falls with him.

HIS cradle was her mother's. He got drunk in her dressing room." Minnie Madsen may literally be said to have been born of and raised on the stage. Her mother, Lizzie Madsen, was one of the first English-American girls who sloped with a foreigner—she married a Danish actor later brought his family to America where he conducted concerts, tours and lectures. The actress was not only co-creator of the company but also its manager and pianist for the orchestra. She later became Mrs. George Madsen, a theatrical manager.

Minnie Augusta Devoy, little more than a child when she arrived of course, she became the stage star of the company. In the early years of her stage career was known as "The Girl from Norway," and at the age of twelve she was crowned King but left behind the scenes. Her mother died about three years ago. She was dressed in a Scotch costume and danced the Highland Fling. Scotch songs and dance the Highland Fling. At the age of thirty-two years old she made her debut as the

Gifts From Business Men; Trend in Giving Changes

By R. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—America's capitalists may have caused but little change in the trend of giving, but they have caused a change in the way of giving. As a class they give away more money than the wealthy of any other class.

History records no such generosity as abounds in the United States today. The world has known individual large-scale philanthropy since the days of the great benefactors of the East. But the world has never seen as much money as is being given away in this country. The fashion has changed. The great benefactors of the past gave away their money in the form of land, or in the form of a large sum of money. The great benefactors of the future will give away their money in the form of a large sum of money.

History records no such generosity as abounds in the United States today. The world has known individual large-scale philanthropy since the days of the great benefactors of the East. But the world has never seen as much money as is being given away in this country. The fashion has changed. The great benefactors of the past gave away their money in the form of land, or in the form of a large sum of money. The great benefactors of the future will give away their money in the form of a large sum of money.

THE BOSTON AMERICAN'S PLATFORM FOR BOSTON AND NEW ENGLAND

For BOSTON: 1.—Clean streets.
2.—Better pay for honest public service.
3.—An airport SECOND-TO-NONE.
4.—Erection of a MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM to compare with any in the land; in order that Boston, properly supplied with first-class hotels, may be the premier convention city of the U. S. A.

For NEW ENGLAND: 1.—Weld the six States into a unit through the activities of the New England Council, thus creating a community consciousness.
2.—Promote intercourse with Central and South America, encouraging New Englanders to "turn to the sea" again.

3.—Keeping everlastingly at the job of telling the rest of the country all about our unique advantages as Summer and Winter Playground of the Nation.
4.—Foster the prosperity of our industries through (1) greater efficiency in production and (2) the use of modern methods in merchandising.
5.—Promote in every way such natural resources as forests, water power and fisheries.
6.—Assist New England agriculture to better marketing methods.

Infantile Paralysis

HAS A Cure Been Found?

Reports from Texas that the serum treatment developed by Fort Worth physicians in their fight against an infantile paralysis epidemic is "having marked results" come just in time to be of good cheer to fathers and mothers of little children in Lynn, where four cases of the disease have been reported within a month.

The serum used in the Fort Worth treatment is taken from a patient recently recovered from the disease and is injected into the blood stream of one in whom paralysis has not recently set in. About three teaspoonfuls of blood are

While Massachusetts has not since known anything quite like the infantile paralysis scourge of the year 1916, when there were 1,927 cases, the late summer of each year has brought the affliction to scores of little persons and some of their fathers.

Polomyelitis attacks the spinal cord, which contains the nerves going from the brain and carrying to the muscles the impulses which cause them to act. It inflames and injures these nerves, destroying some, partially destroying others.

It is a STRANGE disease. Its symptoms differ. It is difficult to diagnose. Its mortality is high; in those who survive, the resulting deformities are sometimes terrible.

In 1917, there were 174 cases in Massachusetts, the next year 69, the next 66, and in 1920 came another epidemic, with 663 cases reported.

You have seen some of the survivors, faces bright, bodies more or less crippled.

Some wear iron braces; some are jacketed in steel and plaster; some walk faultily on feet that turn outward; some limp from the hip.

For more than ten years the Harvard Infantile Paralysis Commission has been working to correct the after effects of poliomyelitis, while at the same time endeavoring to learn what CAUSES the disease and the means by which it is communicated.

The Harvard Commission will not hold out hope when hope is not in sight and will make no announcement of "discoveries" that have not been substantiated. Experiments are being made with a serum similar to that reported from Texas, which will not be considered effective, according to Dr. Hatt of the Shrine Hospital in Springfield, until it is shown to have had good results "in about 100 cases."

The Director of Public Health in Texas has heard from FIVE recent cases, he says, in each of which the serum treatment "stopped the paralysis immediately."

The work will be continued, here and in Texas. We can be sure that the Harvard Infantile Paralysis Commission will raise no false hopes and that in Lawrence, Lowell, Haverhill and North Adams, as well as in Boston, it will go on with its great work in the field of after-care.

Meanwhile, all can be hopeful that good results MAY be shown in 100 cases and many more, and that in the "Fort Worth" serum there has been found at least a cure for one of the most cruel and mysterious of all the maladies with which the children of men have been afflicted.

What a Difference in a Few Years

Danger Signs in a Lady

Look Out for Them, BEFORE Marriage

THE TERRIBLE EMPRESS MESSALINA. F. VAN HENGELA'S CONCEPTION.

It is difficult to speak of Messalina, wife of the Roman Emperor Claudius, as one always should speak of a lady, especially when she is dead. But, really, Messalina didn't seem to care what anybody said about her, living or dead. Her conduct was absolutely such as cannot possibly be described in a newspaper printed primarily for distribution in quiet, moral American homes.

It would be hard to think up anything atrociously wrong that a woman COULD do and that this woman did NOT do. She ruled her feeble-minded Emperor-husband, and taking advantage of his weakness obtained the magnificent Gardens of Lucullus for her own, by bringing about the death of Valerian Asiaticus, on a charge of treason.

And once when her husband was away, she compelled a handsome young man, Gaius Silius, to divorce his own wife and actually and formally go through a marriage ceremony with her, Messalina, in spite of the fact that she had already one husband, the Emperor.

Many of her doings, as said, cannot be discussed in this

BABSON PREDICTS A PACIFIC ERA

By DR. FRANK CRANE

ROGER W. BABSON, the well-known statistician and economist, in an address the other day said that: "If statistics mean anything, the Pacific Coast will be the most active and densely populated section of the United States in the future."

For this he gives three reasons. The first is that the conditions of life are pleasant in California. There is no snow or ice, the climate is benign, the earthquakes are negligible and altogether human life can be carried on more agreeably than elsewhere.

People are ruled by their feelings. As a rule they go where it is the most pleasant.

California has an advantage over other places in that its climate is not enervating. It has semi-tropical luxuriance; at the same time it does not have the debilitating wetness such as we find in Cuba.

The second reason he gives is that the West Coast has decided agricultural advantages over the rest of the country. As a nation increases and progresses, its demand for wheat and corn declines. As it waxes prosperous it consumes more fruit, green vegetables and nuts.

All these things thrive on the Pacific Coast. The answer is that this Coast is increasing at the expense of the decline of the Middle West.

This increase, due to pleasant conditions of life and to the right kind of crops, is evidenced in bank clearings, railroad earnings and foreign trade. The City of Los Angeles has probably grown faster and is growing faster than any city in the country. A good deal of good-humored fun is poked at Southern Californians for being boosters, yet they have something to show for their boosting, as the prosperity of Los Angeles is unexampled.

The third reason Mr. Babson gives is that the coming is to be a Pacific Ocean era. The Pacific is destined to excel the Atlantic in world commerce. He declared that Europe had shot its bolt with the World War and that for the next fifty years it will decline.

The world has long been under the dominance of Europe. America heretofore has been a European colony, culturally speaking.

With the significant growth and changes taking place in China and Japan and with the Pacific Ocean traffic, this dominance of Europe is severely threatened.

The Pacific Ocean will be the market place of the world, said Mr. Babson, in the next generation.

BOSTON DAY-B-DAY

1118 North End is one section of the city to be visited by every one who cannot afford an ocean trip. Narrow streets, continuous noise, overflow of children and women, barrels, boxes, cats, dogs, a store for each customer these are characteristics.

Old world customs and manners make this a bit of Europe. Here the dead are buried with a brass band. A religious festival is celebrated with fireworks and a banquet. Unhappy daughters are not allowed to meet young men. The older generation has great respect for the profession.

This whole section is one vast compressed city of its own. A hotel is next an undertaker, who is located over a banana cellar. All sorts of strange looking cheese, ham, cubes and breads look appealingly out the windows. Children run around with strange sweets over which they quarrel. A theatre is next a factory. Macaroni was once made here.

Stores keep long hours. In the dark, dim interior is the sleepy clerk reading a magazine. On the walls hang calendars showing "Washington Crossing the Delaware."

A boy comes in for a three-cent picnic. Women drop in to chat. In one corner a saintly shrine intrudes an uncommon aspect of store-keeping. Neighbors come in and light children. Business is slow, but no one seems sorry.

The barber shop has a row of old men with silken mustaches. They smoke, talk, doze. They are in no hurry. Perfume hangs over the shop and the barber waits his razor to about for "Angelo, come here, quick change it dollar bill." Flash chairs of 1880 decorate the shop.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

ELSIE wonders how "successful" women get that way.

"There's a girl working in our office, selling bonds," he writes. "I admit she's done well. But to hear her talk you'd think she had invented the world."

They don't need to. She hasn't done any more than a thousand ordinary fellows do every day. She makes good! Men don't take them seriously.

Success isn't as elusive, a proposition for a man as it is for a woman. Yet I admit lady go-getters are apt to be a bit hard to live with. But have you any idea how much harder the game is for them than for men, and how much more credit they deserve if they do succeed?

Business is still a man's world, despite our boasted equality. The woman who breaks into it must battle against the doubts of her family, the sneers of her social circle, and her own hidden feminine weaknesses which so often discourage her in a crisis. She is beleaguered within and without.

Moreover, she is usually carrying a double load. If she is a married woman—and most successful people are—she must juggle her domestic and social responsibilities.

family newspaper. When she married the young man she went TOO far. Her husband being told, tired of the lady, and by his order she was executed in those very gardens which she had obtained by destroying another.

May her career be a warning to all, but of course IT WON'T.

This picture, according to the mystical, mysterious Dutch artist, Van Hengelaar, shows Messalina as she looked during her wild career. He undoubtedly had material to go on; most of these ancient left reproductions of their faces on metal coins or marble.

Study this face for yourself, and gather useful warning—from the uprolling, protruding eye, the mouth, cruel, hungry and over-developed.

The wrinkle in the neck that the Dutch artist puts in, would seem to indicate that this Messalina has reached what is called "the dangerous age," but which was only twenty-six years old, when put to death. Perhaps living so hard and so fast made her old, prematurely.

To discuss details of the dangerous points about this face might do injustice to perfectly estimable women now living. Much of character is in our minds. One part of the brain, as big as the head of a pin, might counteract any kind of sensual mouth, or dangerous protruding rolling eye.

And we possess, what poor Messalina never had, the benefit of true religion which helps us over rough spots. It might have changed Messalina from what she was to an ideal husband-loving, home body.
